

BEST FOR LIVER, BOWELS, STOMACH, HEADACHE, COLDS

They Live the Liver and Bowels and
Straighten You Right
Up

Don't Be Bilious, Constipated, Sick, with Breath Bad and Stomach Sour

To-night, sure! Take Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Wake up with your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right and feeling fine. Get rid of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, furred tongue, sour stomach, bad colds. Clear your skin, brighten your eyes, quicken your step and feel like doing a full day's work. Cascarets are better than salts, pills or calomel, because they don't shock the liver or gripe the bowels or cause inconvenience all the next day. Mothers should give cross, sick, bilious, feverish children a whole Cascaret any time, as they cannot injure the thirty feet of tender bowels.—Adv.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

"When Dreams Come True" at Barre Opera House To-night.

"When Dreams Come True," which will be presented at the Barre opera house to-night, is a combination of melodrama, farce, music and dancing. The first act takes place on the deck of an ocean liner, bound from Havre to New York. The principal character, Kean Hedges, is a swift young American, who has been engaged with a Parisian dancer, to the intense anger of his father in New York, who, hearing of the escapade, has cut off his son's revenue. The youthful adventurer thus has found it necessary to go home in the steerage, where, of course, he is very miserable. But, in the first cabin, there is a charming girl, who, unknown to herself, is being made use of by a woman smuggler to land a string of valuable pearls in America. The young man sees her from his place on the steerage deck, although he cannot approach her. Later they meet upon the deck in New York, and Hedges assists Beth to outwit the customs officers, thus earning her regard and the complications of their true love immediately begin.

There is a lively chase for the string of pearls, participated in by the young girl, the female smuggler and a score of custom house detectives. The costly bauble passes through the hands of most of the characters before matters are straightened out at the finish.

The company engaged to present "When Dreams Come True" numbers 30 people, most of them artists who have gained fame as players of ability. There are two dozen pretty girls to grace the stage, a score of dancing numbers, no end of whistleable ear tinkling musical numbers and an assortment of the very latest and up-to-the-minute feminine finery of the most costly kind.—adv.

How to Buy Pure Food.

In Farm and Fireside are the following rules for buying food products intelligently with some simple tests by which the housewife can tell when she has been made the victim of fraud:

"There are three kinds of adulteration," we read. "First, the mixture of the food with cheaper but not injurious articles; second, the use of substances that injure food qualities, to improve the color and appearance; third, the removal of valuable or necessary ingredients."

"The purity of baking powder, ketchup, vinegar, flour and canned goods is difficult for anyone but a trained chemist to determine. The safest way to buy such articles is to get standard brands."

"While spices are generally adulterated with starchy substances, and the starch can be detected by adding a drop or two of tincture of iodine to a water solution of them, it is best to buy standard brands, the starch test can be used with cloves, mustard and cayenne."

"To detect coloring matter in tea put a teaspoonful of tea in a sieve, shake over a piece of white unglazed paper, crushing a little if tightly rolled. Then crush the sifted dust on the paper with a spatula or a caseknife, drawing it along on the paper."

"If colored, streaks of various colors will be mingled with the uniform color of the tea dust."

"Coffee is adulterated by adding chicory, various cereals, peas, and beans. In coarsely ground samples the coffee will have a dull surface, while chicory is darker and gummy-looking; the beans and peas have a polished surface. A magnifying glass will make these differences plain. For further test put a level teaspoonful in a small bottle of water, shake, let stand a moment; most of the coffee particles, being oily, will float; unless
